Charity

Since becoming a Freemason I have often heard non-masons attempting to describe what masons are. Mostly they say that Freemasonry is a Fraternal Organization that practices Charity, Religion and Community Service. In fact, the one commonality present in each of these definitions is Charity. So, in that respect they have some grasp of what we are about.

We as Freemasons learn how important it is to be charitable right from the start. It is one of the duties of the Investigation Committee to ascertain from prospective candidates whether or not it is in his nature to contribute to those who want and to practice Charity. In reply to questions about Freemasonry I have heard it said that worldwide Freemasons contribute approximately $2 million dollars a day to Charity.

During the Entered Apprentice Degree a demand is made of each newly initiated brother to teach him an important lesson in Charity. The Entered Apprentice Lecture speaks of Faith, Hope & Charity. The greatest of these is Charity; for faith is lost in sight, hope ends in fruition, but charity extends beyond the grave, through the boundless realms of eternity. During the Fellowcraft Degree the Middle Chamber Lecture describes in intricate detail the two columns and the extent to which they are adorned and the meanings of the various representations. It is said that they were thus extensive to denote the universality of Masonry and to teach us that a Mason's charity should be equally extensive.

Are you as a Freemason as charitable as you can possibly be? While Charity is most often associated with money or material things, if it is not within your ability to contribute, it is still possible for you to be charitable in other ways. In that regard I offer the following passages for your consideration:

*Charity contains the lubricant and the cement of life. It is an essential ingredient of Masonry.
It has been said that "the Masonic Way is to give without remembering and to receive without forgetting."*

-- The Short Talk Bulletin, Vol. LVII, No. 11, Nov., 1979

*Every good act is charity.
Your smiling in your brother's face, is charity;
An exhortation of your fellowman to virtuous deeds, is equal to alms-giving;
Your putting a wanderer on the right road, is charity;
Your assisting the blind, is charity;
Your removing stones, and thorns, and other obstructions from the road, is charity;
Your giving water to the thirsty, is charity.
A man's true wealth hereafter, is the good he does in this world to his fellow-man
When he dies, people will say, "What property has he left behind?"
But the angels will ask, "What good deeds has he sent before him?"*

--Mahomet

*Be charitable in your thoughts, in your speech and in your actions.
Be charitable in your judgments, in your attitudes and in your prayers.
Think charitably of your friends, your neighbors, your relatives, and even your enemies.
And if there be those whom you can help in a material way, do so in a quiet, friendly, neighborly way,
As if it were the most common and everyday experience for you
Tongues of men and angels, gifts of prophecy and all mysteries
And all knowledge are as nothing without charity.*

--Cardinal Patrick Joseph Hayes

In closing Brethren, in conjunction with your sworn obligation, give so far as one's necessities may seem to require or your ability to contribute will permit. If you have learned your Masonic lessons well, your charity too, will be extensive; in so doing there will be no need for the angels to ask.

SOME WORDS FROM YESTERDAY

Looking at the overall picture of American Masonry candidly and thoughtfully, it seems to me the greatest single need of our Craft today is a membership with a better understanding of what our Fraternity is and especially of what it is not. Few indeed are the Master Masons who know what Freemasonry really is; even more rare is the species with a comprehension of what Freemasonry is not. Seniority and rank seem to have little relationship to our ignorance. The number of Masters, Past Masters and Grand Masters who are hazy as to what our Craft is all about is appalling.

What has happened?

Well, we seem to assume that Freemasonry, is a fly-by-night fad of the mid-Twentieth Century; something to be tossed hither and yon by every wind that blows. In the restless, superficial age in which we live, we are impatient unless our organized bodies have slogans, and carry banners, and make official pronouncements on about every subject under the sun, however trivial. We want them to follow the conventional pattern; to maintain lobbies, to publish aims and objectives, conduct drives and campaigns, strive to get into the headlines and on the airwaves, write checks to everything that sounds benevolent and has a board of directors, and, in general, to have a finger in every pie. Freemasonry does none of these.

Strange, is it not, that our ancient Craft should have gained for itself such a preeminent position of honor and prestige when it does almost nothing in the conventional manner! Then what is this Freemasonry to which I urge our Brethren to return? What are its aims and objectives? What does it do?

Perhaps the last place we would expect to find an answer would be in the First Book of Kings, and even then the answer will come as something of a disappointment, for it is all so different from the ways to which we have become accustomed.

Elijah was languishing in his cave on Mount Horeb in the conviction that of all God's children only he had remained faithful to his trust. By divine command, Elijah went forth and stood upon the mountain, and the prophet tells us what happened:

*"And behold, the Lord passed by,
and a great and strong wind rent the mountains
break in pieces the rocks before the Lord;
but the Lord was not in the wind:
and after the wind an earthquake;
but the Lord was not in the earthquake:
and after the earthquake a fire;
but the Lord was not in the fire:
and after the fire a still small voice."*

What does that mean to us this day? It means that Freemasonry erects its Temples within the hearts of men. Even though we may not understand what we are saying, we sound forth our purpose in trumpet tones when, in our own Declaration of Principles, we proclaim, "Through the improvement and strengthening of the character of the individual man, Freemasonry seeks to improve the community."

And we tell the candidate for the degrees of Masonry the same thing in words striking in their simplicity. "The design of the Masonic Institution," we say to him, "is to make its votaries wiser, better, and consequently, happier." Not a word about mass action, nor pressure groups, nor resolutions on matters of state policy. No "pro" this nor "anti" that. No sales talk for any pet scheme. No great undertakings to cure the ills of the world by making everyone over to fit a pattern of our own design. No running about like chickens with their heads off in search of a do-good project with which to gain favorable notice. No restless biting of the nails to compete with a service club or a civic league. No endless "busyness" which loses sight of the objective.

The message of Freemasonry? Just this: that the Lord is not to be found in the wind, nor in the earthquake, nor in the fire, but in the still, small voice!

The purpose of Freemasonry? Its purpose is the same as it has been since the day when the stones for King Solomon's Temple were hewn, squared and numbered in the quarries where they were raised. It is to take an individual-just one man at a time, mind you, and as good a man as possible-and try to make a better man out of him. That is all. How desperately the world needs just that! And if that technique is outmoded, then the experience of two thousand years is all wrong; the Parable of the Mustard Seed is horse-and-buggy philosophy; the Leaven in the Loaf is a cruel hoax.

The mere fact that men do not comprehend its purpose does not mean that 'Freemasonry has no purpose, nor that its purpose is outmoded -it only means that the stones are not being well hewn and squared in the quarries where they are raised.

Freemasonry has not been tried in the balance and found wanting: it has been found difficult and not tried.

More than anything else today, the world yearns for that same kind of gentle, healing influence at work in the hearts of men. The Masonic Institution, which sometimes is looked upon with scorn because it does not operate in the conventional manner, is prepared to bear witness to the fact that the conventional way of our age leaves much to be desired, and to stand upon its own majestic affirmation that the way to change human systems is to change human lives.

The wise and venerable Dean Roscoe Pound has seen more of life than most of us, and views history with greater philosophical calm, perhaps, than any of us Here is his message to his Brethren of the Craft: "Freemasonry has more to offer the Twentieth Century than the Twentieth Century has to offer Freemasonry."

(The above article is an excerpt from "Wither Are We Traveling?" written by Dwight L. Smith in 1970)

"Freemasonry must stand upon the Rock of Truth, religious, political, social, and economic. Nothing is so worthy of its care as freedom in all its aspects. "Free" is the most vital part of Freemasonry. It means freedom of thought and expression, freedom of spiritual and religious ideals, freedom from oppression, freedom from ignorance, superstition, vice and bigotry, freedom to acquire and possess property, to go and come at pleasure, and to rise and fall according to will or ability."
