May 1986

Dear Brethren:

For our May meeting we will have a program for "Rusty Brethren". In olden times, when a man wanted to learn a trade, he worked under a master of the trade for a number of years until he became a journeyman and then he was able to earn his wages and train apprentices. Many present day trades follow this apprenticeship format, and our great Masonic Fraternity is similar to it.

Usually, when a man becomes a Master of his trade, his education doesn't stop there, he attends seminars, meetings, etc. and he can ask among his fellow workers for more instruction as he needs it.

Freemasonry's "Master of the Trade" is the lodge, Brethren, here is where we learn our Masonic trade of spreading brotherly love and affection, here is where we get our education in morality and learn to practice charity.

In a manner of speaking, we are apprentice Master Masons, unless we continue our search for Masonic Light and Knowledge.

The Master Mason who continues his search, that only began when he was raised, will come to more fully realize the beauty of Freemasonry than the Master Mason who is raised and never seeks more knowledge.

This meeting will be a good one to attend Brethren, I am looking forward to seeing you there.

Let us meet in lodge as brothers and share our knowledge of Masonry. I'll be there, will you?

Fraternally,

MARVIN WHITE, Worshipful Master
