

October 1991

Brethren,

I am writing this trestleboard from the observation point at the Gornergratt, viewing the Matterhorn. The sun is brilliant and sky clear. Snow can be seen on the distant mountain tops and several crystal clear streams are observed flowing down the sides of the mountains to the villages below in Zermatt.

As I sit here and enjoy the sheer beauty and magnificence of it all one can come to appreciate the natural beauty and greatness the Grand Artificer of the universe has designed in these undertakings for all of us to enjoy.

A gaze down into the valley to see the green grasses of the meadows and farmlands gives the feeling of height and ascendancy then with just a small turn of the head towards thr great Matterhorn projects to the individual a feeling of being small and minute in such grand splendor.

A truly impressive sight. One which makes a person realize his or her place in God's overall creation of life and those things around us.

Faternally,

RON
